Description

An Art Deco 9ct yellow gold engine turned tie clip.

Tie clips, also known as tie bars or tie slides, originated in the late 19th century during the Victorian era, as men's fashion shifted from cravats to narrower neckties. Early clips were simple, functional accessories to keep ties in place and prevent them from blowing around.

By the 1920s and 1930s, tie clips became more decorative, with intricate designs and personalised styles.
