

Fine quality progressing banded agate bead strand, circa 1920

Sold

Description

A fine quality early 20th century progressing strand of rare banded agate, circa 1920.

Banded agate is a striking variety of chalcedony known for its concentric, parallel bands of colour. These bands can range from subtle pastels to vibrant hues, creating unique and eye-catching patterns. Valued in jewellery and decorative items, banded agate symbolises stability and balance, showcasing natural beauty through its distinct formations.