Description

A beautifully crafted platinum half eternity ring, set with nine old-cut rubellites in a rich and vibrant sequence of pink-to-raspberry tones. The warm, expressive colour of the stones is set off to striking effect by the cool white brilliance of the platinum, creating a jewel that is both refined and full of character.

Each rubellite has been individually cut in the older style, giving the ring a pleasing variation in facet pattern and a softer, more individual sparkle than modern precision-cut gems. Arranged across the upper half of the band, the nine stones form a continuous ribbon of colour while allowing the ring to sit comfortably and smoothly on the hand.

Rubellite, the prized pink-to-red variety of tourmaline, is admired for its depth of colour and exceptional vitality. Here, its romantic tones give a fresh and distinctive interpretation of the traditional eternity-ring design-an elegant alternative to diamonds and a particularly meaningful choice for an anniversary, milestone, or special gift.

A versatile and highly wearable ring, substantial enough to wear alone yet refined enough to stack with other platinum or gemstone bands. Its combination of old-cut stones, rich colour, and timeless platinum setting makes it a wonderful addition to any fine jewellery collection.
