Description

An early 1930s two-step Herbert Terry Anglepoise lamp in original cream painted finish.

George Carwardine (1887-1963) was a British industrial designer and engineer, renowned for inventing the Anglepoise lamp in the 1930s. His innovative design, featuring a unique balance mechanism, revolutionised task lighting with its adjustable arms and precise control. Carwardine's work significantly influenced modern design, blending functionality with elegance.

Rewired with twisted fabric flex and PAT tested.
