Description

An Arts & Crafts brooch in bronze and enamel, dating to circa 1910, with a circular domed centre mottled in amber, ochre, brown and black, framed by a rope-twist border.

Light picks out golden patches across the smooth enamel as the brooch turns. The twisted border gives the dome a crisp outline, while the patinated bronze picks up the darker tones in the enamel. A plain pin fitting survives on the reverse.

Pin it to a charcoal wool lapel to bring out the amber tones, or wear it on a plain linen dress where the rope-twist border can be seen up close.

We make every effort to ensure our photographs represent the piece accurately; however, colours may vary slightly depending on lighting and screen settings.
