Description

A small West Iran Persian Nahavand hand knotted rug, circa 1900.

Persian Nahavand hand-knotted rugs are celebrated for their durability and intricate designs, originating from the Nahavand region in western Iran. These rugs often feature bold, geometric patterns with rich, earthy colours like deep reds, blues, and browns. The high-quality wool used in Nahavand rugs gives them a luxurious texture and resilience, making them highly sought after by collectors. Their unique blend of tribal and floral motifs reflects the cultural heritage of the region.
