Description

A 1920s 9ct gold mid-size Dennison cased Swiss Orosia movement manual wind lady's wristwatch on an early canvas strap. Hallmarked for Birmingham 1925.

Dennison watch cases, produced by the Dennison Watch Case Company founded in 1874 by American watchmaker Aaron Lufkin Dennison, were renowned for their durability and quality. Originally based in Birmingham, England, the company crafted cases for various high-end watchmakers, including Rolex and Omega. Dennison cases were made from high-grade materials like gold, silver, and stainless steel, ensuring both elegance and resilience. These cases remain highly collectible today, admired for their fine craftsmanship and historical significance in horology.
